QH to open Sunday

QANTAS Holidays will open its Sydney contact centre from 9am to 2pm this Sun 15 Feb in order to help deal with strong demand for packages in conjunction with the current QF Kids Fly Free fares.

GM Chris Rankin said the US was particularly popular, with deals available incl stay, play and eat free deals for kids under 12 - such as 4 nights in Anaheim, a 3 day Disneyland ticket and flights ex SYD from $2,052 per adult and free for accompanying kids.

Rankin also reminded agents that QH is paying 5% commission on Qantas retail fares booked in conjunction with its products.

Travel2 slams w'sale rival

STELLA'S Travel2 mainstream wholesale operation has come out swinging in response to Creative Holidays' announcement of higher commission on Singapore and Malaysia Airlines fares (TD Wed).

Stella gm wholesale Rohan Moss told TD yesterday that even with Creative paying 8% on SQ and 10% on MH, the Travel2 nett sell price to agents still enables them to make more from each sale.

"Creative are just creating noise with smoke and mirrors," he said, adding that: "anyone can increase commission if you load up the gross price."

Creative Hols hasn't actually lifted its gross fares to pay the extra commission, but Moss claimed that Travel2's sell price to consumers, and the nett to agents "is still better than theirs."

"They're coming down to meet the market and they're still not there," Moss insisted.

"Travel2 has no need to change our position and continues to offer our customers and agents the best possible sell price and the lowest nett price to our agents," he said.

He cited the example of a Malaysia Airlines Year Round B Class fare ex SYD on 01 Apr.

Travel2 charges a gross of $831 commissionable at source at 6% meaning the agent pays $781.

In contrast for the same fare Creative charges $891 gross, paying 10% commission giving an agent nett of $802, $21 higher than the Travel2 nett.

Creative Holidays is sure to respond with further offers but one thing is certain, the battle for market share in the current environment can only be good for agents and consumers wanting to snap up some great bargains.

BEST REGIONAL AIRLINE - ASIA ASIA'S BOUTIQUE AIRLINE

QF - half price up the front!

SOME travel agents are questioning the timing of a Qantas promotion launched today offering '2-for-1' business class deals for just five days.

Consumers were emailed about the sale overnight, with agents given a cryptic heads-up late yesterday, about QF's 'Luxury Treat for Two' sale which coincides with Valentine's Day tomorrow.

The sale is bookable on several key routes until 17 Feb and means big savings, with a companion only needing to pay taxes and charges.

One concerned agent, who asked to remain anonymous, contacted TD saying, "a 5-day sale in the current economic climate just doesn't work, especially with business class travellers."

He said the sale appears to be non-agent friendly, with clients likely to take advantage of this weekend to book their own flights online at home, bypassing their travel agent altogether.

"Are they (Qantas) trying to undermine the industry?" he queried, adding: "a sale like this can't be so short-lived."

"Not all travel agencies are open over the weekend, and our agency is sure to miss out on sales as a result," he added.

Qantas is offering the deal on flights from SYD or MEL to London and Los Angeles, BNE to New York & Buenos Aires, PER to Singapore & Frankfurt, ADL to Singapore & Johannesburg and CBR to Hong Kong, for travel on selected dates between 15 Mar-31 Aug 09.

Although some agents are complaining, others welcomed the Qantas move saying it's a positive step which is likely to stimulate demand and urged the industry to capitalise on it with value-added land content deals.

Qantas Hols will open Sun (see p1) and has announced 10,000 bonus frequent flyer points for pax who book four nights accom in conjunction with the 2 for 1 fare.

TT purrs with Webjet

TRAVELLERS will be able to easily compare Tiger Airways fares with those of other carriers after the low-cost airline's new deal with Webjet (TD breaking news).

From next Tue, Tiger fares will be included in Webjet's fare matrix, with the expansion of distribution coming in the lead-up to Tiger opening its new Adelaide base on 01 Mar, which will see it expand to 15 domestic routes.

The Webjet move has come as a surprise to many, with Tiger's president Tony Davis adamant last Mar that the only distribution channel the airline was interested in was direct sales via its website.

 Window Seat

A SYDNEY travel agent has urged Qantas to release a "Hard Working Taxpayers Special" for all the people who don't qualify for the current Kids Fly Free deal.

Donna Sheehan, who owns Cronulla Travel in the city's south, says she's just letting off steam, but is annoyed that "once again Mrs Average (me) gets penalised."

Her agency is clearly a strong Qantas supporter - its website www.cronullatravel.com.au even features the QF A380!

"These families get baby bonuses, government handouts, kids back to school bonuses, first home buyers bonuses and now cheap fares from QF," she said.

"And me...no baby bonus, no government handout, no first home buyers grant AND I'VE GOT TO PAY A WHOLE LOT MORE FOR A QANTAS TICKET TO LAX because I don't have a child under 12."

"(PS Just joking, but perhaps a good marketing idea for the future)," she added.

Cheer up, Donna - why don't you take a friend on a lovely business class trip to London or Los Angeles using the Qantas 2-for-1 deals announced overnight (see story at left).

NSW pinching Qld tourists

VISITORS to the Gold Coast will be prompted to "turn right for the NSW Coast" by a cheeky new billboard advertising campaign, unveiled today by Gold Coast Airport and Tourism NSW.

The billboard (pictured above) is strategically positioned at the exit to the Gold Coast airport, which is only metres away from the NSW/Qld state border.

The eye-catching sign, appearing until the end of Mar, features a panoramic scenic image of Mt Warning and the Tweed valley surrounds, with the caption "The only high rises you'll see".

NSW Minister for Tourism, Jodi McKay, was at the launch of the billboard which highlights the beauty of the NSW North Coast to visitors from overseas.

McKay said the airport has done a great job at attracting int'l carriers, with AirAsia X and Jetstar International now flying into the Gold Coast Airport.

She said "the new partnership between Tourism NSW and Gold Coast Airport has great potential to steer international visitors to the NSW North Coast for short term stays as part of their visit to the Gold Coast."

Last year, the Northern Rivers and Mid North Coast regions saw more than 391,000 int'l visitors.

OOL airport's ceo, Paul Donovan, said the campaign is indicative of the proactive working relationship the airport enjoys with tourism bodies, saying it "will encourage visitors to the Gold Coast to incorporate the natural wonders of the North Coast and Northern Rivers of NSW into their visit."

ABTA shows filled

ABU Dhabi Tourism Authority's inaugural Travellers Welcome roadshow, being hosted in Syd, Mel and Bne, are now all full.

Country mgr, Peta Williams said "the response has given a clear indication of just how much interest there is in Abu Dhabi."

Beijing Mandarin Oriental burns

IT hasn't been a very happy Chinese New Year of the Ox for Mandarin Oriental, with its brand new "flagship property in China" badly damaged in a fire this week.

The 30-storey building containing the 241-room hotel, set to open soon, appears to have accidentally been set alight during Chinese New Year firework celebrations.

Mandarin Oriental doesn't own the property but had signed a long term management contract, and said it's too early at this stage to assess the full extent of the damage.

Bay of Fires Lodge opens year-round

TASMANIA'S Bay of Fires Lodge, located in the pristine wilderness on the island's east-coast, has announced it will open for the entire year in 2009.

The property was previously only available to guests exploring the Bay of Fires region as part of a four-day walk, from Oct-May.

New owners, Anthology, made the decision to open the Lodge as an overnight experience after Lonely Planet recently listed the Bay of Fires as one of the "hottest travel destinations in 2009".

There are only 10-rooms available at any one time, meaning the Lodge can be offered for sole-use tailored group itineraries.

Prices inclusive of all meals, a selection of Tassie wines with dinner, guided walks and daily activities start at $450 per person.

For bookings and more info see www.anthology.travel.

Biofuel from Finn forestry waste

A NEW type of green biofuel is close to being created, as Finnish forestry and paper group UPM-Kymmene is currently conducting trials to produce biodiesel, bioethanol and heavy fuel oils from forest residues including tree bark, twigs and stumps.

If the financial crisis doesn't halt investment in biofuel production, then airline biofuel could rise significantly in 2010 said Christian Schuchert, strategy director for Boeing in Germany.

New generation bio-jet fuels from oilseeds, hydrophyte and algae are expected in the next few years, however Mr Schuchert said fuels will have to be strictly quality-certified by authorities.

If the current trials are positive, commercial green fuel from forestry waste could be possible in 2012-2013, he said, also giving developing countries a chance for new economic activity.
